The paw house

Does your pampered pooch or cosseted kitty need its own crockery and cutlery? Perhaps not. But then do you really want to eat from a spoon that smells of Whiskas or Pal? Belinda Jennings, the creator of Muttlery & Catlery, takes the guesswork out of avoiding the cutlery used to serve up Spot's Pal. The long-handled stainless steel spoons come in two sizes ($16.50-$19.95), decorated with paw prints to ensure they won't get mixed up with the silverware. Your favourite bundle of fur can also get its own mug (above, $24.95) for measuring dry food, which means dad can reclaim his coffee cup with the Larson cartoon. See www.petspoons.com.au.
